

Gang Gang Cockatoo.

The Gang Gang Cockatoo (Callocephalon galeatum) now found in Victoria, in the early days extended its habitation to South Australia, and Mr. William White, of the Reedbeds, has a specimen that he shot in the ranges at Mosquito Plains, near Kalangadoo, in the south-east of South Australia, in 1858. Mr. White states that he occasionally saw these birds in the district while he was on the Tatiara Station, but they were at no time plentiful, and never stayed to nest.
