Bird Notes.

By F. E. Parsons.

At Glen Osmond, at 7.45 p.m. on 10th September, 1931 (a dark night), birds were heard passing overhead and uttering barking calls, which he considers were from Banded Stilts (Cladorhynchus leucocephalus). He could not determine the direction in which the birds were travelling, as whilst he listened, the calls came from all directions and the birds seemed to be in large numbers.
