

Spotless Crake (Porzana plumbea).—Mr. Norman Birks saw two of these birds in vegetation along the River Sturt in his property at Coromandel Valley on 7th January, 1937. A chick was sent in later to the Museum. It had the whole of the body black, bill black, egg-tooth white, legs and feet brownish black.