

By Howard Jarman.

On 11th September a nest of the White-browed Scrub-Wren (Sericornis frontalis) was seen in Spark's Gully, National Park, Belair. It contained two chicks, and an infertile egg of the species was found beneath the nest.

---