

—By J. W. Mellor, Lockleys.—

In spite of the parched conditions, Southern Pipits (Anthus australis) are still about in the paddocks, where they apparently still find plenty of insects. The drinking-pot and the sprinklers in the garden attract many birds, those most in evidence being Magpies, White-fronted Chats, Greenies, and Miners.